Providing a secure environment for your home

ReadyGuard

Full Voice Response

ReadyGuard "speaks" to you, indicating system status with clear voice prompts.

Crystal-clear Display

The unit's easy-to-read display provides system status, time, and indicator that lets you know when you have a message. Indicator lights also provide system status at a glance.

The keypad is as easy to use as your telephone.

Simple To Use

Whatever the age range of your family, this unique system can be used by even the youngest member in the family. With easy to understand voice response, ReadyGuard® "speaks" the status of the system without using confusing lights or codes.

Increase Communication

ReadyGuard includes valuable features that help you enhance communication with your family. A message center lets you record reminders for members of your household. A blinking light alerts those returning home to play your messages.

Paging Keeps You In Touch*

Whether you are at work or running errands, the paging feature allows anyone to reach you with the touch of a button. You can also use the system to automatically page you when your child returns home from school. It's advantages like these that make the ReadyGuard system a valuable addition to any home.

Requires separate paging service.*

Getting help when you need it most

Your ReadyGuard system can be connected to a central monitoring station to provide 24-hour monitoring of your home. By having your security system monitored, you are increasing the level of protection your system can provide. For instance, if a break-in were to occur, your ReadyGuard system sends a signal to the central station, where a security professional may call you to verify the alarm. Once this verification is made, the security professional may then contact the proper local authorities.

Notification

Fire, police or emergency personnel can be summoned to your home by security professionals to help protect your family.
